

Staging the Play

Matt Cameron

In a series of short films, five award-winning playwrights talk about the staging of their plays.

Louis Nowra

They talk frankly about how a work changes from the page to the stage, and the flurry of re-writing which occurs with a new play during the rehearsal period.

Debra Oswald

They take us on the journey of the play from the first reading through to the opening night. They speak about the role of the actors, the director and the audience.
